Have an interactive booth

Allow visitors to interact with your brand/team. Consider your audience's different ways to interact with your team. For example, during the first, it may be instinctive to do everything in your digital booth; not everything responds to the digital experience similarly. Consider some analogous actions for customers who are not tech-savvy or want to know how to log out.

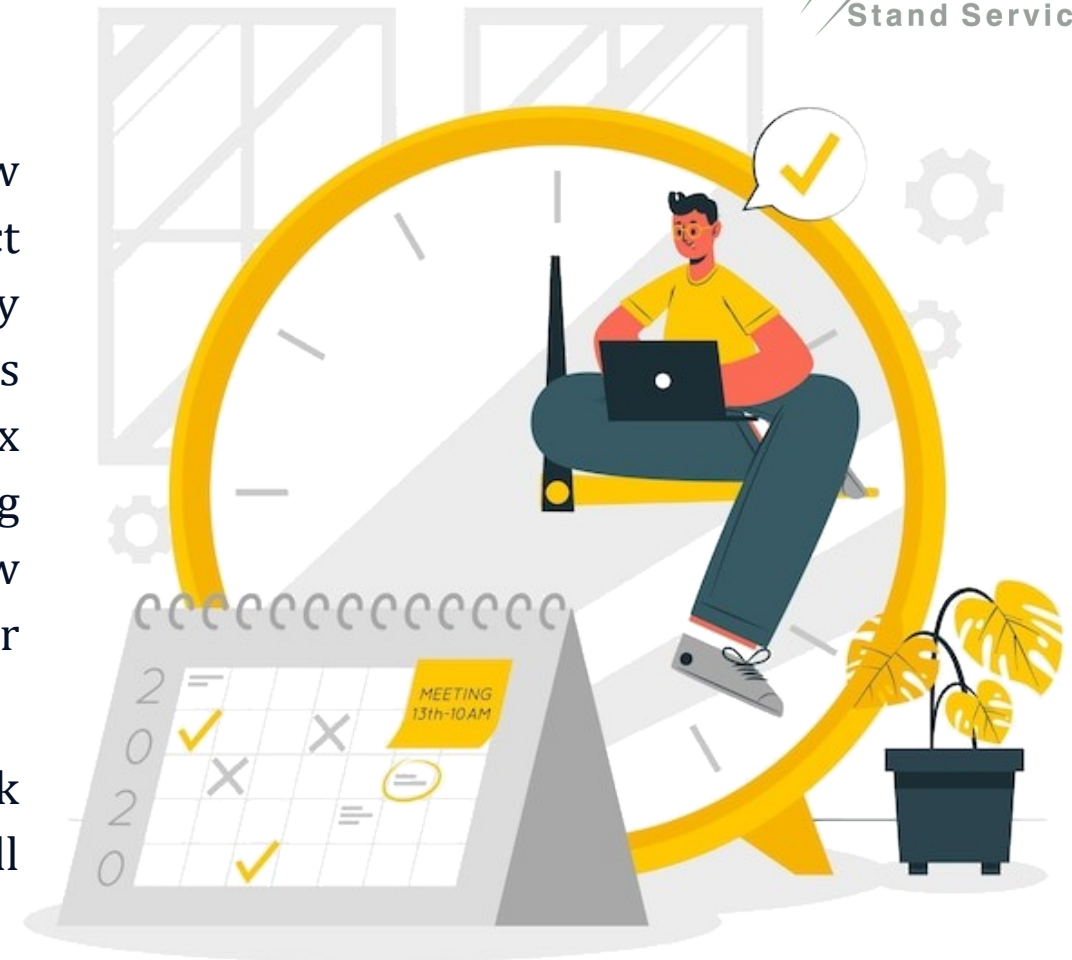

Benefit from the latest trends in the living room world. Thanks to this, you will design a booth that will attract everyone's attention. Your booth illustration must correspond to these trends. Don't try to imitate others; take advantage of these trends and create a unique design for your exhibit.

START PREPARING EARLY

Creating a calendar is an underrated activity factor for new exhibitors. For many beginners, 8-6 months off is the perfect time to build a stand or exhibition. Too often, companies try to speed up production and consequently get tasteless products. However, following this program will help fix potential problems. It creates a better manufacturing process. In addition, the supporting program of the show itself is the key. Giving new exhibitors more time for configuration is strongly recommended.

The equipment is often not at a time when the loading dock is safe. So allowed it can take several hours. Overall, time will be a crucial factor in a very successful fair.

DEPICT THE EMOTIONS YOU WANT THE VISITORS TO HAVE

Specify the emotions you want your visitors to feel. How would you like people to visit your stand? How do you feel when you leave: enthusiastic, relaxed, and confident? It can be a traditional mood or a more abstract concept. In any case, you should keep this in mind spirit.
