

Don't Make These 5 Mistakes When Cleaning Your Windows

Clean windows can make a big difference in the atmosphere of your home, but there's a right way and a wrong way to go about it. If you've ever tried to clean your windows only to find yourself frustrated with streaks and smudges, then you know that window cleaning mistakes are very common. But don't worry—you can avoid them by following these easy tips. Read on for the five common mistakes you need to avoid when Rochester MI window cleaning!

1. Not Cleaning in Direct Sunlight

One of the biggest mistakes people make when trying to clean their windows is not cleaning in direct sunlight. Everyone knows sunlight makes everything look better, but did you know it works wonders when cleaning windows? The sun will dry out any excess water or soap residue, so if you want streak-free results, try cleaning your windows on a sunny day. Just wear sunscreen if you'll be outside for an extended period!

2. Using Harsh Cleaners

Another common mistake is using harsh cleaners like ammonia or bleach on their windows. While these products may work great on other surfaces around the house, they can damage the protective coating on your windows and leave behind unsightly smudges and streaks. Opt for milder solutions like vinegar mixed with warm water or just plain old dish soap mixed with warm water—they both work just as well but won't damage your protective coating.

3. Not Pre-Cleaning Before Washing

It may seem like an extra step that isn't necessary, but pre-cleaning before washing is key if you want streak-free results every time. All you need is some newspaper, a lint-free cloth, and some window cleaner (or white vinegar mixed with warm water). Give your windows a good wipe down before washing them with soap and water—this will help remove any dirt or debris that could get stuck in the soap suds later and cause annoying streaks when they dry.

4. Not Giving Enough Time To Dry

One of the most frustrating things about window cleaning is waiting for them to dry entirely before heading off to do something else—but this step is essential if you want streak-free results! Make sure to give each window 10 minutes (or longer in humid climates) to air dry before calling it quits; otherwise, all your hard work will have been for nothing!

5. Not Reaching High Enough Up On The Window Frame

Last but not least, don't forget those tiny little corners near the top of the frame that are often neglected during routine window cleaning sessions! These areas tend to collect dust and cobwebs over time, so don't forget about them when tackling your next window cleaning project—a good ladder should help you reach them easily enough without climbing onto any precarious ledges or furniture pieces!

Conclusion

Window cleaning doesn't have to be hard if you take the right approach! By avoiding these five common mistakes, you'll be able to keep your windows sparkly clean year-round without having to deal with pesky streaks or smudges every time you're finished washing them off! With these tips in mind, anyone can become an expert in Rochester MI window cleaning!
